"To Save YOU Time"

DO YOU have time to locate and read reviews of the more than 1000 new juvenile titles published each year? Of course you can't possibly find time to check subject-matter, age and grade level, and to look up the reviews and recommendations on all of these. But wouldn't it be wonderful to have that information at your fingertips?

MB NUBOOK CARDS are being used successfully far and wide by librarians and school librarians. They save hours of hunting for reviews, grade levels, publishers' data. How often have you said to yourself "Where DID I see that book review?" Order preparation is simplified because all necessary information for each juvenile title published is on a 3 x 5 card. A five-year color schedule helps you identify the copyright year. At a glance you know whether Wilson Catalog Cards are available.

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS EXCITING SERVICE

AND SEND IN YOUR ORDER NOW . . . "To Save YOU Time"

ADVANCE SERVICE — TWICE A YEAR

- February — Complete list of spring juvenile and young people's titles announced for publication between January 1 and June 30, by major and minor publishers of children's books, some 75 in all. Cumulated card list, in one alphabet, by author.
- August — Complete list of fall titles announced for publication between July 1 and December 31.

REVIEW SERVICE — FOUR TIMES A YEAR

Cumulative Service. Complete publication information and review notations.

- November — Cards of juvenile and young people's titles of spring and fall of current year, with review notations which have appeared through October 15.
- February — Cards listing reviews of all books which have been reviewed to January 7, including repeats of early fall titles with additional reviews.
- April — Repeat cards for all fall books which have had additional reviews to April 7, and any spring books already reviewed.
- August — Cards of all spring books which have been reviewed, including repeat cards for those with additional reviews since April.

EARLY DAYS OF THE SCHOOL LIBRARY IN CALIFORNIA

By Margaret R. White

California, although one of the younger members in the family of states, has always been one of the most progressive in the matter of providing for the education of her children. The story of the development of the school library in California is closely related to the library movement elsewhere in the United States, as well as the history of California itself. The personalities of those interested in providing proper library privileges for school children sparkle through the tomes of history with particular brightness.

Consider John Swett, Superintendent of Public Instruction from 1863 to 1868, one of the foremost educators in the early days of California. To appreciate his accomplishments, picture, if you will, the California of a hundred years ago: mining settlements, migrant families, boom towns, rapidly growing cities and wide open spaces, schools small and widely separated; the public school as we know it, non-existent. Most of the schools were supported by tuition, and only a small proportion of California children were able to obtain an education. In 1863 the percentage of attendance at the public school was only 25 per cent of the children of school age, and the percentage of attendance of the total enrollment was only 55 per cent. The total number of schools was 754, of which only two were high schools, one in San Francisco (125 students), the other in Sacramento (40 students).

With state education in such an embryonic state of development, it would hardly be expected to find school libraries even mentioned in the early records. It is surprising then, to learn that in 1854, only four years after California had obtained statehood, a law was passed providing for district school libraries. District school libraries, first initiated in the east, had flourished for a time, but reached their maximum in 1853 and began to decline. This was about the time they were beginning in California.

In discussing the district school libraries, John Swett in 1863 urged the use of 5 per cent of the school tax fund for school libraries, of which he said:

"The influence of well-selected books in a school is second only to that of the teacher; and in many instances the information self-learned by the pupils is the most valuable part of a common school education.

"A teacher may fail in the discharge of his ability, but the golden grains of thought gleaned from good books will spring up in the youthful minds . . . just as certainly as the fertile soils of our beautiful valleys rewards the toil of the husbandman with a bountiful harvest."

A few statistics will show some of the results of John Swett's promotion of the school libraries. During the year 1863 California spent a total of $514.75 for school libraries, or $.014 per child. The total value of the State's school libraries was $3,600. The public school of Marysville claimed the honor of having the largest and finest school library in California, with one thousand volumes valued at $1,000. By 1896 the total valuation of school libraries in California was reported at $57,895. In 1885 only three states, Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, stood higher in the number of volumes per thousand of the school population. California had 740 books per one thousand pupils.

Recognition of California's progressive steps in legislation for the public school library was given in the U. S. Bureau of Education Annual Report for 1886-1887: "Among public library laws, that of California . . . seems to be one of the simplest and most efficacious."

The service that county libraries rendered to rural school libraries was another factor in the development of the school library. Again California received recognition as a leader. The credit for inaugurating the excellent system of county libraries in California goes to James L. Gillis, State Librarian from 1890 to 1917. When Mr. Gillis became State Librarian he at once set about to make the California State Library of service to the people. A state traveling library was inaugurated. But this did not solve the matter of bringing books to all the people.

In 1908, Mr. Gillis outlined a plan whereby the county libraries could serve the schools, and the State Library could serve the county libraries. The State Librarian was to be in charge; the county librarians were to be the head of the largest library in each county "with duties corresponding to those of county superintendent of schools." It was Mr. Gillis' hope that by this plan "the resident of the remotest county section would have in easy reach not only the books of his district library, but also those of the county and state libraries." It was desired to work out the plan "in such a way as to develop between the school and the library the most effective co-operation."

The promotion of Mr. Gillis and the State Library Association resulted in the County Free Library Law of 1909, which enabled the counties to make contracts with existing public libraries for co-operation in library service. A more effective law was passed in 1911, providing library service to rural areas by a county library tax, and providing certificated county librarians. Branch libraries throughout the county made it possible for the county library to serve the school libraries as the school districts wished. Boards of (school) Trustees had authority to contract with county libraries for service, and the county school superintendent could transfer the school library fund to the county free library.

As the county libraries aided the rural school libraries, so the public libraries played an integral part in supplementing city school libraries. As public libraries increased their collections, improved their techniques, raised the standards and enlarged their services, many educators as well as public librarians realized the importance of the public library as an auxiliary to public education.

Sharing the resources of the public library with the school was accomplished in a number of ways. The library was taken to the school; the children were taken to the library; reading rooms were established in public libraries especially designed to attract children. Story hours were offered, branch libraries were set up in the schools or sometimes in the schoolroom itself. None of these methods was completely satisfactory, but they were all steps leading to the central library in the school.

There were a few individuals in the early days, however, who recognized that school librarianship was a special field, and required special training. Gradually school administrators began to realize the vital function the school library, if properly supported, could play in school life. The appointment of the first fully qualified librarian to a school library was a signal step forward in the history of the school library. This happened in New York in 1900, when Mary Glastonburg of Connecticut passed successfully the first examination by the New York Board of Education for the position of school librarian.

California was only three years behind, for in 1903, Ella Morgan, a trained librarian, was appointed to the Los Angeles High School, and began enthusiastically to make the library function in a positive manner. This was not easy, and Miss Morgan's first impressions were not very encouraging. In 1891, the Los Angeles High School had opened with "an innovation in school architecture in the form of a large, well-lighted room designed for a library." But for the first twelve years there was no librarian. The books were locked in cases, and the room opened only on Friday by the janitor, if the key had not been mislaid. During the rest of the week the books were undisturbed in silence and darkness.

After Miss Morgan had fumbled with a bunch of unco-operative keys a few times, she determined to remove the doors from the cases. This idea met with some resistance from the principal, who objected that the books would become dusty and soiled. A compromise was finally agreed on by the arrangement of placing canvas over the cases when the janitor cleaned at night. This was the first of many improvements which were to transform the library, and make it a pattern for other high school libraries, and the work of Miss Morgan in raising the standards of school libraries must long be remembered.

The contrast of this early school library to a modern school library with its attractive displays of books, its carefully selected book collections, its professionally trained staff, is great. These changes are the product of changing concepts of education and method in American schools. More directly, they have been effected through the persistent efforts of men and women with vision and with high ideals of education.

IN REVIEW . . .

Davis, E. Louise, comp. Recommended Children's Books of 1958-59. Bowker, 1959. $2.00.

This compilation of reviews from Library Journal reprints 1058 favorable reviews of children's books published in 1958 and early 1959. Each entry contains information on publisher and price, and type of binding. There is an author-title index, and the reviews are arranged by age and subject. Within the major age groupings—For the Youngest, The Beginning Reader, Upper Elementary Grades, and Teen Age—the reviews are listed under various subject categories appropriate to each group.

Best Books for Children, 1960 edition. Bowker, 1959. $2.00.

A revised, enlarged and up-to-date 225-page catalog of 3,000 of the best children's book in print. As in previous editions, the 1960 revision provides helpful annotations and arrangement by grade and subject. In addition, the new edition will add some 300 new titles published in 1959, including adult books for young people. This 1908 edition has a colorful cover design by Barbara Cooney, winner of the 1959 Caldecott Medal.

Nelsen, Ester K., comp. Bibliography of Science Books for Elementary School Children. Bulletin of the California State Department of Education, XXVIII, No. 5, September, 1959. 120p. $.52.

Designed as an aid in the selection of elementary school science books, the bibliography's six sections are: Living Things, the Earth, the Universe, Physical and Chemical Phenomena,

People and Events of Science, and Multiple Topics. The books are analyzed according to (1) their value for elementary school children, (2) the major scientific emphasis, and (3) the topics included in the science curriculum of the elementary school. Copies have been widely distributed to California schools.

Portteus Elnora M. Those Dollars and Cents—Preparing School Library Budgets. Aspects of Librarianship No. 17, Dept. of Library Science, Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, 1958.

An excellent, detailed 12-page paper on the preparation of school library budgets.

The Effective Secondary-School Library. The Bulletin of the National Association of Secondary-School Principals. November 1959, v. 43, no. 250 (pp. 1-190) $1.50.

This issue of the NASSP Bulletin is devoted to discussing the effective secondary school library. In 190 pages the issue covers library programs in action, the principal and the library, school library personnel, quarters and materials, the teacher and the library, the student and the library, school and public library relationships, plus an extensive bibliography of recent publications and audio-visual materials on school libraries. In thirty-four articles by nationally-prominent librarians and school administrators, virtually every aspect of the secondary school library is explored, ideas and techniques presented, and programs discussed. A welcome addition to our shelf on school libraries.

MILDRED BRACKETT NEW CONSULTANT . . .

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Roy E. Simpson, has announced the temporary appointment of Miss Mildred M. Brackett to the new position of Consultant in School Library Services in the Bureau of Audio-Visual and School Library Education, California State Department of Education. Her appointment is for approximately six months.

Consultant service in school library education is new to California, having been authorized by the State Legislature during the 1959 Session. A temporary appointment has been made in order to have the services organized and in operation while arrangements are completed to fill the permanent position.

Miss Brackett is on loan until July 1, 1960, from her position as Director of Library Services with the Office of the County Superintendent of Schools in Sacramento County. She has held this position since September, 1950, when library services were added to the Sacramento County Superintendent of Schools Office.

Prior to coming to Sacramento County, Miss Brackett was the County Librarian for Spokane County, Washington. She graduated from the University of Washington Library School in 1933 and has held a number of positions in schools and libraries. Her experience includes three years of classroom teaching, five years of school library work in junior and senior high schools, and four years of public library experience. During World War II, Miss Brackett served as an Army Hospital Librarian in charge of library services for Baxter General Hospital.

In addition to her library science degree, Miss Brackett has a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Idaho, and has done graduate work at Washington State College, University of Idaho, University of Oregon, and Sacramento State College.

Miss Brackett has been active in the School Library Association of California and served as president of the Northern Section, 1954-1955. She is also a member of the C.T.A., C.L.A., Delta Kappa Gamma.

AROUND THE STATE . . .

CURRICULUM LIBRARIANS TO JOIN SLAC

California's curriculum librarians, meeting early in December have voted to affiliate with SLAC. In a series of meetings at Chico State College, San Francisco State College and the University of Southern California called by Dr. Robert Browne, Consultant in Curriculum Development, State Department of Education, curriculum librarians and curriculum directors representing universities, state colleges, county and district offices voted overwhelmingly to become part of the School Library Association of California. The meetings followed an earlier meeting in Sacramento during October at which the pros and cons of affiliation and the problems relating to specialized groups were discussed. It was agreed that curriculum librarians and laboratory directors have a strong need to become identified as a group. "We will certainly be in a better position to give improved curriculum library service at all levels if we can get together for discussion of mutual problems and attempt some co-ordination of effort," Dr. Browne said.

Just how the curriculum librarians will be organized within SLAC remains to be worked out. A committee representing all areas and levels of curriculum library work has been appointed to work with Dr. Browne and with SLAC President, Elsie Holland. On the committee are Miss Helen Bullock, representing the state colleges; Miss Alice Olson, the colleges and universities; Mrs. Betty McBride, school districts; and Mrs. Dulcie Blume, county schools offices.

USF INSTITUTE ON YOUNG ADULT READING

A two-day institute on school and public library responsibilities for young adult reading and school reference work will be held at the University of San Francisco on Friday and Saturday, March 25-26, 1960. Featured speaker at the institute, sponsored by the Public Library Executives of Central California, will be Miss Jean Roos, formerly Young Adult Librarian of the Cleveland Public Library, and nationally known authority on young adult reading. For further information write to Sister Mary Alma, University of San Francisco, San Francisco 17.

CHRISTMAS MEETING IN EL SEGUNDO

The climax of the fall season for SLAC members in the south was the Christmas program in early December. This year at the Thunderbird Hotel in El Segundo on December 5, 1959, more than 250 school librarians and their guests enjoyed a program which was both informative and delightful.

In the morning, Dr. Donald E. Kitch, Chief of Supplemental Education Services in the State Dept. of Education, outlined the plans for selection and use of the new state school library consultant. He concluded with a warning that we must not expect too much, reminding us that no one person can accomplish what an organization can.

Following Dr. Kitch's talk, Dr. Rudolph Sando of Los Angeles State College outlined the background of the CASSA Evaluation Program. Much interest was shown during the discussion period which followed Dr. Sando's address on the question, "What use are accrediting committees making, in evaluating school libraries, of our state and national library standards?" There is no mention of standards in the present "instrument" used in evaluating secondary schools; Dr. Sando assured us, however, that members of accrediting committees are becoming increasingly aware of the existence and importance of our standards.

Miss Elizabeth O. Williams, head supervisor of libraries in the Los Angeles City Schools, and President-Elect of AASL, then summarized the hard work of many people over a period of several years which will culminate early in 1960 in the publication of the new national standards for school libraries. words gave us insight into the tremendous amount of study and thinking, and the complexity of the teamwork, which lie behind the new statement of goals and plans for implementation. She whetted our appetites for the new publication, and spurred us to think further on what we can do to work toward the new goals.

Luncheon followed Miss Williams' address. Social chairman, Barbara Ann Canady, was responsible for luncheon arrangements, and for the charming table decorations. After luncheon Mrs. Charlotte Davis, program chairman, introduced our luncheon speaker, Merle Armitage, impresario, author and designer of books. Mr. Armitage reminisced delightfully. The program then concluded with a surprise: a Christmas song sung by Mrs. Armitage, who accompanied herself on the guitar.

WORKSHOPS AT USC

Two one-day workshops of special interest to school librarians are among those scheduled by the School of Library Science, University of Southern California: "Book Selection, Reading and Pressure Groups" is the subject for February 16, 1960, at which a special look will be taken at the Fiske Report. Participating in this program are Albert Lake, Edwin Castagna, Caswell Perry, John Henderson, Grace Dunkley, and Dr. John Dustin. On Saturday, March 12, 1960, the Library School will sponsor a workshop on "School and Public Library Problems." Among the many speakers and consultants are Lois Fannin, Virginia Baygelow, Jane Cavette, Grace Dunkley and Mabel Berry. Program and registration details can be obtained by writing to the School of Library Science, University of Southern California, Los Angeles 7.

NORTHERN SECTION REORGANIZATION

The Northern Section Advisory Council held a special meeting at Stockton on December 12, 1959, to consider revisions in section organization suggested by the State Manual Revision Committee. Manual revision has been under way for three years, and the part of the manual dealing with state officers was approved by the state Executive Board last spring.

The committee recommended to the Council that section committees be divided into two groups: those dealing essentially with the section program, and those having primarily housekeeping functions. The program committees would be co-ordinated by the Vice-President, the housekeeping committees by the Director. The committee also suggested making the section secretary an appointive position, and having the Vice-President succeed to the presidency.

The Council voted to approve these changes. They will be presented to the section membership at the Santa Rosa meeting on January 30, 1960, for approval, and then to the state Executive Board.

SOUTHLAND LAUNCHES GRADE-LEVEL COMMITTEES

Senior High Committee

"Our group," says Ethel Blumberg, chairman of Southern Section's new senior high school committee, "is a pioneering group. We decided at Fullerton to dream, each of us, of what could be done in our own libraries if we had the proper staff, and to make a list before our next meeting of some of the things we would do if we had such a staff. This, we hope, will help us to interpret the new ALA standards to our administrators while continuing to give the best service possible under existing conditions.

"We discussed little things, too," adds Mrs. Blumberg, "sharing with each other various tricks of the trade."

Junior College Committee

Led by Camille Baxter, chairman of the junior college group, junior college librarians are studying orientation programs on the college level. At Fullerton the tools and techniques used in several junior colleges were described, and there was discussion of the relative merits of locally made slides and tape-recorded orientation lectures versus orientation films. The use of brochures planned to help special groups of students was also discussed, and examples of such brochures were shown: one a somewhat general manual for the term paper, the other a manual designed specially for engineering students. Finally, this group discussed problems related to the cataloging, storage and use of audio-visual materials in junior college libraries.

Directors and Supervisors Committee

The directors, co-ordinators and supervisors group is working under the leadership of Mrs. Grace Dunkley, Curriculum Co-ordinator for the Bellflower School District, reports Chase Dane, District Librarian of the Santa Monica School District. Following a plan made at the September 26 meeting of Southern Section in Los Angeles, Mrs. Dunkley's group met in Fullerton to discuss problems of centralized cataloging and buying. A second meeting will be held in Rialto on March 5, 1960, to discuss the role of the school library supervisor.

Examination DateFebruary 27, 1960

Salary Range$710-745-782-821-862

ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS

California residence is not required for this examination. Possession of a valid California Administration or Supervision credential or life diploma or credential, or life diploma or equivalent authorization and a valid librarianship credential. (Applicants who do not possess the required credentials will be admitted to the examination but must secure the credentials before they will be considered for appointment).

and

Experience: Two years of experience in planning, organizing, and supervising a program of school library services for a county, city, or district educational agency, and one year of teaching experience.

FACTS ABOUT THE POSITION

A consultant in School Library Services, in the Bureau of Audio-Visual and School Library Education, develops, promotes and co-ordinates statewide policies and practices for school library services in terms of curriculum needs; advises and consults with school librarians, teachers, school supervisors, and school administrators for the purposes of orientation and interpretation of the educational functions of school libraries and the role of instructional materials in the learning process; develops and implements programs of inservice library training for local school personnel; studies and recommends to school administrators the purchase and installation of appropriate equipment and materials for educationally sound school library programs; represents the Department of Education with the School Library Association of California and acts in a liaison capacity with colleges and universities providing library training and school districts needing service; co-operates with other staff members of the Bureau of Audio-Visual and School Library Education to insure a balanced instructional materials program; and does other work as required.

FACTS ABOUT THE EXAMINATION

Place of examination: The written test will be given in such places in California as the number of candidates and conditions warrant.

Ordinarily qualification appraisal interviews are scheduled in Sacramento, San Francisco, and Los Angeles. However, locations of interviews may be limited or extended as conditions warrant.

SCOPE OF THE EXAMINATION

A minimum rating of 10.00% must be attained in each part of the examination. Written Test: Weighted 5.

1. Principles and practices of school librarianship.
2. School curriculum, the psychology of learning, and the philosophy of education.

3. The organization of the California educational system.

Qualifications Appraisal: Weighted 5.

Education and experience: Appraisal will be made either by personal interview or by evaluation of the statements on the application; however, the method of appraisal selected will be the same for all candidates.

Evaluation of personal traits and fitness may be made by personal interview or may be omitted if not considered feasible. Personal qualifications include willingness to travel throughout the state, tact, pleasing personality, and neat personal appearance.

GENERAL INFORMATION

General civil service requirements apply to this position; see Personnel Board announcement for details: Citizenship; Veterans Preference; Personal Qualifications; Investigation; Fingerprinting; Medical Requirements.

Applications are obtainable from the State Personnel Board in Sacramento (801 Capitol Avenue), San Francisco (515 Van Ness Ave.), Los Angeles (110 State Building), and at local California Department of Employment offices. Applications filed by mail must be addressed to the State Personnel Board, Sacramento 14, California.

Applications will not be accepted if postmarked later than midnight of the final filing date. No supplemental information concerning your education or experience will be accepted if filed or mailed after the final filing date.

READING OUT LOUD

During the third week of January the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., with the co-operation of ALA, will begin telecasting a series called "Reading Out Loud." The thirty-minute programs present distinguished Americans reading to children.

Among the people appearing on these programs are Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt reading to her grandchildren from "Just So Stories," Archibald MacLeish reading to his grandchildren from de la Mare's poems; Jose Ferrer reading from "Huckleberry Finn"; Jackie Robinson reading to his children from "The Red Badge of Courage"; Senator John Kennedy reading from Nevins' "Emergence of Lincoln," and Eva LeGalliene reading from her own translation of Andersen's fairy tales. The Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. was responsible for securing the guests, and an ALA committee recommended the stories and books, though the final choice was left to the guests. The ALA committee screened and approved of all the pro-

The committee has prepared a list of books for reading aloud which may be duplicated for use in local libraries. Single copies of the list may be obtained from ALA headquarters. Kinescopes of the separate programs in the series will be available later for purchase or rental.

"Reading Out Loud" will be telecast on WBC stations and educational stations. It will be syndicated nationally without program charge to television stations, providing the broadcast carrying it is non-commercial.

THEY SAID IT COULDN'T BE DONE!

We may not be "first" on the moon, but in the development of Library Binding the "firsts" have been awarded to Pacific.

The story of Pacific Library Binding Co. is the story of creative ability of people — people who have contributed thinking, planning, and inventive genius to make Pacific the leader in the field of Library Binding.

Since 1912, exploration into library binding problems has been foremost in P.L.B. operations. In the space age, you continue to benefit from the inventions and "firsts" that have produced higher quality bindings faster and at lower cost.

- 1918 Designed the Scoring Machine, for easier opening of rebound books.
 - 1920 Perfected the famous OVERSEWING MACHINE, used by all modern library binding plants in the world.
 - 1925 Designed the BOOK SANDER, to give maximum inner margins on rebound books.
 - 1929 Developers of exclusive AUTOMATIC STAMPING MACHINES for gold and foil stamping.
 - 1930 Improved the "DEK-O-LETTER" Machine.
 - 1931 Designed the BOOK SECTIONER Machine.
 - 1933 Exclusive developers and users of "Economic Sto-A-Way" Magazine Bindings.
 - 1936 Introduced to Western Libraries the beautifully illustrated covers on rebound Children's Books.
 - 1956 First to offer both Picture Covers and Treasure Trove Covers plus beautifully decorated covers from all leading sources.
 - 1960 Specific and specialized binding problems are still being solved in this "space" age.
